

FORMER TEACHER ARRESTED

Clarence C. Uhl Former Mokena School Principal In Toils of Law at Evanston

Clarence C. Uhl, who served the Mokena Public School as principal from September 1926 to the close of the school term in 1927, figured in very unsavory news since Sunday when the news was broadcasted over the radio Sunday night that he had been arrested in Evanston that day on the charge of having committed wholesale thefts at the Garret Biblical Institute which he had been attending as a divinity student and from which he had graduated.

For several years the students of the institute have been victims of petty thieving, having reported the theft of fountain pens, type writers, umbrellas and other articles.

Uhl had won the respect and confidence of students and professors alike and they had utmost faith in him. He was a handy man and had a little tool shop in the basement of the university where he repaired all sorts of things. The faculty decided to change all the locks in the dormitories after the petty thieving was reported and engaged Uhl to change the locks.

These thefts, however, continued off and on. Finally detectives were put on the case and Sunday they raided a room next to Uhl's tool shop and found articles of every description including typewriters, gold teeth, a gallon jar of fountain pens, a quart jar of keys, umbrellas, and a score of other articles. When Uhl was placed under arrest he was at his apartment reading the Bible. He confessed to these thefts upon being questioned by the police. When asked why he did these things he said he did not know. Later he is said to have remarked that he had a hard time to get along and blamed "economic stress" for his predicament.

He has been held incommunicado since his arrest and his wife and friends have not been permitted to see him.

After the close of school at Mokena last spring, Uhl and his wife went to Evanston and spent all summer in the home of Prof. Eischen of the Northwestern University. The professor was astounded when he heard of Uhl's arrest. His friends at Mokena were horrified when they heard the news and several went to Evanston to see him, but upon their arrival found they could not see him.

After his arrest, Uhl was accused by a co-ed of larceny. She said that she and another girl friend had visited in the same apartment where Uhl lived and that they had missed their pocket books, one containing $35 the other $5. They told Uhl about it and he helped them to search for them but failed to find a trace of the missing pocket books.

When the lost stolen by Uhl was found, the two pocketbooks, minus the money were found. It was then that the co-ed who had lost $35 signed a complaint against Uhl.

When told of her husband's arrest Mrs. Uhl is reported to have said she thought he was a kleptomaniac. She said she often saw him with small trifles but was under the impression that he had bought them. Uhl is said to have denied that he is a kleptomaniac. While Uhl lived in Mokena a number of petty thefts occurred in the neighborhood, but there is no proof that he was connected with them. He always carried a black brief case with him when he taught school at Mokena and it is said he never left the case out of his sight. If he went from one room to another he took the brief case with him.

Uhl always appeared upright and honest when he lived in Mokena and was considered a hero last spring when he saved the life of Marjorie Hamilton, pupil of Mokena school, when she met with a serious accident when a slide she was on broke and drove a long splinter thru her leg. By his presence of mind, Uhl saved her from bleeding to death.

He is highly educated as also is his wife. He is a world war veteran and saw service overseas.

His friends here are deeply grieved over the affair and hope that all the charges being brought against him are not true. When he was engaged as principal of the Mokena public school he came highly recommended.

Bequeaths Property To Widow

On Tuesday a petition was filed in the Will County probate clerk's office to admit the will of the late Julius Hirsch of Mokena to probate.

Under the terms of the will all the personal property is bequeathed to the widow. One third of the real estate is bequeathed to the widow also, and two thirds to three children, Carl, Edwin and Julia. His brother, Charles Hirsch is named as the administrator.

Southwest Highway To Terminate at Orland Park

The much discussed Southwest Highway from Chicago to Joliet, came up before the Cook County Commissioners at a meeting Monday afternoon. The Commissioners, it is reported, favored the paving of the highway from 74th street, Chicago 123rd street at Palos Park at a width of 40 feet and from there to 143rd street at Orland at a width of 20 feet. The Southwest Highway is to follow the west side of the Wabash right of way from 74th street to Orland.

The continuation of the Southwest Highway thru to Joliet now all rests with Will County. This county is considering the floating of a road bond issue and the paving of Maple street as the route of the Southwest Highway but it is understood that Cook county favors a diagonal line from 143rd street in Orland township thru to Joliet.

For the present the new super-highway will have its terminal at Orland.

The new highway will pass thru or along the villages of Oak Lawn, Worth, Palos Park, Chicago Ridge and Orland. The contract for the paving of this highway in the city limits will be let soon, is the report.

The Southwest Towns Chamber of Commerce has been a big booster and factor in getting the new highway before the county commissioners. This will be the most important highway between Joliet and Chicago and will be a short cut route into Chicago and will be heavily traveled. It will also give all the communities thru which it passes a direct connection with Chicago.

Circulate Petitions For Wolf Road

The Mokena Development and Hard Road Improvement Association is working with extra renewed efforts to get the gap on Wolf Road paved from the Will and Cook line to the Lincoln Highway. A number of petitions are in circulation, petitioning the Will County Board of Supervisors to have the gap paved from the funds accruing to the county from the gas tax. The Wolf Road boosters are going to continue pressing the paving of the Wolf Road in Will County until the paving is a reality.

The Forum of the Press

Mokena, Ill., Feb. 8, 1928.

Editor News-Bulletin, Mokena, Illinois, My Dear William:-

Am leaving today for a short run up into DuPage County, and before I return, you will probably have learned that I have responded to the call of yourself and other friends, and have arranged for filing your petitions with the Secretary of State in my candidacy for the office of Representative in the General Assembly of the State of Illinois from the 41 Senatorial District, Will and DuPage Counties, subject to the April 10, 1928 Primary Election.

There never was a time more auspicious, for concerted activity in the interest of future development in Political affairs than in the 1928 campaign, and it really affords me considerable pleasure to enter the contest recognizing as I do that Illinois is the great pivotal state around which revolves, so much that tends toward the consummation of projects concerning interests both public and private and which are of such vast importance that they become at once, not only local problems that when solved will be found essential elements in National and International affairs, creating general harmony of intent and purpose, restoring and promoting confidence, and equalizing the chances for Personal Liberty and the success of individual and collective human endeavor, rights and privileges.

It is a wonderful Humanitarian fight, at an opportune time.

The eyes of the world are upon Illinois.

The intelligent and the unbiased Press, and the determined and enlightened Public Official, must answer the call of the confiding and trusting electorate of the state, and set the Beacon for the light they seek.

No sacrifice is too great for me to make in this cause.

Fraternally,
Don C. Hall

Rock Island Asked To Build Subway

The Rock Island railroad has been asked to construct a subway or route 51 at a point where the highway crosses the Rock Island east of Mokena.

The state division of highways has filed a petition with the Illinois Commerce commission in Springfield asking that the railroad be required to establish a subway.

Contracts for several sections of the road have been awarded and part of the road from the point where it connects with route 44, east of Wilton Center to Andres has been completed.

State highway engineers say that the entire route will be ready for travel during the summer of 1928 and have requested that the Rock Island start work on the subway early this spring. Date for a hearing on the petition to determine the manner in which the cost will be divided has not been set by the commerce commission.

Tinley Team Meets College Players

The Tinley Park Basket Ball Team dropped a pair of close games last Friday night to a Blue Island team composed of college players home on mid-semester vacation. The lights lost 18 to 17. The heavies lost 22 to 20.

Three of the Blue Island players are students at the University of Illinois. A fourth player is a cadet at the West Point Military Academy.

Monday night the girls team and the heavies travelled to Blue Island and lost to the Blue Island Lutherans. The girls were swamped 26 to 0. The heavies dropped a fast game 36 to 20.

The Tinley Park basket ball team will play Frankfort in a second series of games this Friday night at the Saenger Hall. A week from Friday Homewood will play two games here.

Tuesday night a team from West Englewood will play the lights and heavies on the home floor.

Newly-Weds Pay For this Dance

About 150 persons attended the "Grand Finale" dance in the Grange Hall at New Lenox Saturday. Expenses were defrayed by the free will offerings of the newly-weds in this vicinity. An oyster supper was served. Louis Sass was chairman of the affair.

Don C. Hall In Race for Office of Representative

For the first time in its history Mokena will have one of its citizens in the political arena for a state office. This week Don C. Hall, president of the Don C. Hall company engaged in the manufacture and distribution of herb products, has announced his candidacy on the Republican ticket for the office of state representative. He has filed his petition with the secretary of state and will begin an active campaign soon.

Mr. Hall is an ex-member of the Wisconsin legislature and helped in passing a number of excellent measures for that commonwealth.

He has had wide legislative experience. He is a unique and picturesque character. He is virile, able and energetic. In addition he is possessed of capable oratorical powers.

He is a keen student of politics and in an article appearing in the News-Bulletin during the summer he made a forecast of the political lineup for the state and national tickets and his predictions have been fulfilled to the letter.

Mr. Hall is affiliated with all the principle fraternal organizations, orders and societies.

He has been a resident of Illinois for many years and is a thorough student of state affairs and legislative procedure.

There are now five candidates in the field for state representative: Lottie Holman O'Neill, Downers Grove, John L. Walker and John Jenco, Joliet and Michael Henneberry of Wilmington.

The political pot is boiling merrily. A hot campaign will be waged for the various county offices. The decision of the Supreme Court upholding the April Primary law coming late as it did, will make the candidates rush their campaigns along. The primaries will be held on April 10th.

A History of Tinley Park

John Fulton, my father, was born in Belfast, Ireland in the year 1838. He came with his parents to this country when a year old, landing in New York in 1839. With his parents he immigrated out to this part of the country in 1844 and lived just two miles from Tinley Park or what used to be called New Bremen.

They had been living there about four years, when a man by the name of Mr. Clark came to their home to rest. He was very tired for he had been hunting deer and had followed some Indians that were living down in the woods. They came after milk every morning over to my grandparents home. Mr. Clark talked to my father about the different kind of game. He decided to walk on farther and of course, my father was very fond of hunting and together they came on to where Tinley Park now stands. It was then just a piece of bare land and soon after Mr. Clark purchased some of it from the government and gave a plot of it for a school house site on Kirchen street just back of the Lutheran church. A few years later the people's thoughts and wishes were realized and a school house was built and the first teacher that taught in it was Miss Lorinda Evandan.

This school house stood till 1870 when it was made over into a larger school building and that was used until 1892, when it was moved over on the village property and is now used as a village hall.

Another school was built on land donated by Fred Nielson and in 1924 our present school building was erected and the old one was sold for a Community Hall.

And now to go back to the first building in the village. It was owned by Mr. Kittle and used as a store and post office. It stood on the corner of Ridgeland Avenue and North street. It was afterward moved several times and Mr. Schreiber had it for a shoe maker shop. A few years ago it was torn down and the present store built. (The second building was put up in the middle of the block on North street and John Thorworth was the second store keeper. He also kept the post office. A few years later he moved to Aurora, Ill. Then Christ Andres, Sr., took over the business in about 1850. Sometime later he built the store on Ridgeland and Andres Avenues. He quit the store business and ran the elevator and was the second depot agent as the Rock Island had put the first track thru in 1852 and my grand parents gave the laborers board and lodging for 30 cents a day. The Andres store has changed hands five different times and John Funk is the present owner.

Now about the Vogt store. It has been kept in the family. Charles

The Great American

We need more men like Lincoln in our national life today and more of his precepts and sincerity and God fearing ways in place of graft and political corruption. Give us more Lincolns.

Vogt had it in the Linden Garden restaurant. His brother Henry took it over later and today his son Henry is running the Bremen Cash store which was built in 1836. My father helped to haul the first church from the North Town line to the village and it is now being used as a school by the Zion Lutheran church. Some years later the new Lutheran church was built or to be exact it was erected in 1896 on land that was given by Christ Andres, Sr. and later moved on land given by John Rauboff.

The village was incorporated in 1892 and the name of Tinley Park was given in place of New Bremen. Dr. C. W. Bishop was the first mayor, and the second doctor, Dr. Bassitt was the first one here. James Madden had the first blacksmith shop. Henry Kammert had the first butcher shop. Grandma Wyman had the first millinery shop. She is still with us and celebrated her 83rd birthday Feb. 7th. At one time this part of the country was an English Settlement, but today you would call it a German-American one.

And I must not forget to mention Wm. H. Weber the great politician. Tinley Park claims him as one of their town boys, and the first job he ever had was working on the John Fulton farm.

Bond Issue Losing In Favor

The proposed bond issue for the building of concrete roads in Will County, is not looked upon with favor by many of the farmers and other residents thruout the county, the reason being that it is felt the taxes are high enough now and that the auto license fees and the gas tax should bring in enough funds to build the hard roads without putting an extra tax burden on the tax payer. And that is not all. Many of the members of the Will county board are opposed to the proposed bond issue and were it to be voted on at the present time it certainly would be defeated.

Orland To Lose Old Landmark

Orland Park is about to lose another old land mark in the removal of the old Woodman hall. This building was put up by the Orland Camp of the Modern Woodmen 20 years ago and was in use for many years. In later years interest in the Woodmen meetings died out and the hall fell into disuse and decay.

The camp has decided to sell it at auction, the buyer to tear the building down or remove it from the lot on which it stands.

Part of the building is two story. Some of the floors are of maple.

Small Girl Quick to

Mavourneen, age four, had never been entirely convinced on the household rule that she should comb her hair, regardless of the hurry in dressing to "go somewhere." The youngster frequently protested to her mother, against what, to the youthful mind, was a needless waste of time.

The other evening the family car was passing Pump Company No. 8 in Massachusetts avenue, just as an alarm came in. The sudden stop of traffic; the quick scramble among the firemen to board the truck, as it raced out the doors, left the youngster speechless, but she soon came back to normalcy by exclaiming: "Now, you see, mother, they didn't stop to comb their hair."—Indianapolis News.

STATE CAPITOL NEWS

Hiram L. Williamson,
Illinois Press Association

Officials of Illinois and state fair management have fond hopes of an extensive building program for this year's state fair and they have had but one disappointment—a shattered dream—thus far, and that is that the erection of a huge dome building on the exposition grounds cannot be built at the prices of construction today; so the miniature structure which replaced the glass and steel dome after its destruction many years ago will be razed, the foundation blasted and a grassy plot will be a marker for the location of "the largest dome in the world."

The passing of the miniature dome will bring no tears. To raze it is a part of the year's program for the Illinois State Fair association.

In addition to the proposal to erect a dairy building at a cost of $250,000, plans are also under consideration to erect four or five sections of the poultry building on the plot north of the dairy products building. This start on the attractive structure will cost approximately $60,000.

When the new grandstand was completed just before the opening of the state fair last summer, some said the structure was too big. It was filled every day during the fair and there is evident demand for cement bleachers on either side. But this will not come this year, but is within the range of possibility for 1929.

Fire losses in Canada are steadily decreasing while fire losses in Illinois and the United States are mounting higher and higher each year was the declaration of State Fire Marshal S. L. Legreid before the chamber of commerce and the Illinois Fire Prevention association at Moline a few days ago.

Mr. Legreid said in part: "The loss of life and property by fire in Illinois and throughout the country continues to be staggering in its total. During the ten-year period from 1916, the fire waste of the United States increased in round numbers from $259,000,000 to $565,000,000. This is an average fire loss per day of more than $1,500,000, or more than $1,000 for every minute of the calendar year.

"While Canada has been showing a commendable decrease in losses by fire, sad to relate, Illinois and the United States during the same period has steadily increased the destruction of property by fire. In the great province of Ontario, Canada, the fire losses reached their highest peak in 1923, when approximately $19,000,000 in property was destroyed by fire. In 1924, this fire waste was lessened to $16,000,000; in 1925, to $14,000,000, and in 1926 to $12,000,000.

Motorists of Illinois during the past six months covered a mileage surpassed by no other state in the Union. It all came about because of Illinois' extensive system of hard roads. This condition is indicated by the fact that an average of 16 more gallons of gasoline were used per car than for the nation at large.

The average quantity of gasoline used in Illinois per car is 200 gallons. On this a tax of $4 was paid. During the same period automobilists of all states having a gasoline tax have used an average of 180 gallons of gasoline, on which they paid a tax of $5.06 each. In addition to using 16 gallons more gas per automobile during the six months Illinois motorists have paid $1.06 less than the average tax in the United States.

A health report just issued by Dr. L. D. Rawlings, state director of health, shows 178 cases of diphtheria, 358 cases of scarlet fever and 321 cases of pneumonia under quarantine. The detailed report shows:

Diphtheria, 178, including Cook county with 129 cases, Chicago 119, Monroe county 5, St. Clair county 5.

Scarlet fever: 358 including Cook county 181, Chicago 151, Champaign county 7, Cumberland county 8, LaSalle county 25, McLean county 11, Rock Island county 5, Sangamon county 10, Winnebago county 29.

Smallpox: 38, including Cook county 4, Chicago 3, Kane county 3.

Illinois placed second among the forty-eight states of the union in building construction, according to the national monthly building survey just completed by the S. W. Straus & Co. Des Plaines, Oak Park and Rock Island showed substantial gains, both for last year as compared with 1926 and for December, 1927, compared with the same month of the preceding year. The yearly gains were: Des Plaines, 54 per cent; Oak Park, 45 per cent, and Rock Island, 85 per cent. The December gains were: Des Plaines, 121 per cent; Oak Park, 169 per cent, and Rock Island, 269 per cent.

Election judges and clerks of downstate Illinois cities which have election commissions will receive an increase in salary from $6 to $8 a day, according to an amendment just adopted in the house of representatives.

The increase was provided for in an amendment offered by Representative T. J. Sullivan, Springfield. Representative Frank Holton, East St. Louis, moved to table the amendment, but his motion was voted down and the bill was advanced on the calendar.

Illinois reserve officers have given very practical evidence of their interest in helping young men to obtain the benefit of reserve officer training corps courses in colleges and universities. The North Shore Chapter of the Reserve Officers' association, located at Evanston, has raised money to provide a free scholarship at Northwestern university. This action followed a suggestion made by President Walter Dill Scott of Northwestern for means to increase enrollment in R. O. T. C. at that school. President Scott explained that approximately half of the young men attending Northwestern work their way through school. The needs of many students prevented taking military training. Consequently a free scholarship would help some deserving young man to devote time to military training.

It has been stated that awarding the scholarship probably will be made at one of the citizens' military training camps during the coming summer training period. The opportunity for young men to secure a free scholarship at Northwestern will very likely induce ambitious young men to attend citizens' military training camps this summer in order to qualify for the free scholarship.

In view of the increasing interest now being displayed all over Illinois in R. O. T. C. training, this action of Illinois reserve officers is very timely. It is stated that Illinois reserve officers are the first in the country to provide a free scholarship.

The average Illinois milk cow is worth $20 more than she was three years ago, and cattle of all kinds, collectively, increased in valuation, since 1924, $18.46. Horses and colts are worth $5 more; mules have gained $2; sheep and lambs have held their own, and swine are $1.10 under their valuation of January 1, 1925, according to a survey made by the Illinois cooperative crop reporting service.

Why milk cows gained more in average value during the three years last past, than any other form of live stock in the state, is attributed by the director of agriculture of the state of Illinois to several causes:

"Selective breeding doubtless has effected dairy cattle values favorably," Director Starnard commented recently. "The figures, issued recently, show that, last year, the increase in the value per head increased as much as in the preceding two years. This is encouraging, and indicates that the upward trend in values has not ended."

"There have been many diseased cattle removed from herds in Illinois within the past few years, due to bovine tuberculosis. This elimination of diseased animals has made the ones remaining worth more money. This result has been noted in individual herds, and this statewide survey shows the condition in general.

"Another process that has eliminated the unprofitable milk cow, through tests for production records, carried on throughout the state, is doubtless partially responsible for this increase in the average dairy cow of Illinois."

If the State Supreme court hands down a decision upholding the constitutionality of the primary election law of 1927, there will be a wholesale scramble by the state officials to get their petitions in circulation and have them held before February 20. Should the court hold the primary act invalid, which probably would mean a fall primary, candidates will take it easy for an indefinite period.

Candidates are growing nervous as the time for the gathering of the seven Supreme justices draws near. They have been called to the capital city by Chief Justice Heard to consider the primary election law.

If a decision is handed down and the act of 1927 is upheld, candidates may file their petitions at once for the primary election April 10. However, it is considered doubtful if Secretary Ensmann will have authority to make the official filing.

Stigma of a prison record shall not follow a man who has served his time in prison, Illinois laws decree. Only in the event he again falls into the clutches of the law may his prison record be used to brand him as an enemy to society.

Interpreting the statutes for Roy W. Ide, director of the state department of welfare, Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom said that records of criminals at state prisons are kept for the sole purpose of identifying persons adjudged, accused or suspected of crime. "The legislature has directed," the attorney general said, "that prison records are not public records, open to inspection at all times by anyone who desires to inspect them."

"If a convict escapes from a prison and his whereabouts are unknown, the warden may reveal such information as he may consider necessary as an aid to the identification or capture of the criminal. A certain amount of discretion is here vested in the prison warden."

Records kept at the state prison include a description of the convict, his criminal history, if any, and his photograph.

One of the largest audiences assembled in the capital city in recent years is expected to be present at the public exercises commemorating the one hundred and nineteenth anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln, to be held in the state arsenal Sunday evening, February 12, under the auspices of the Mid-day Luncheon club, with all churches of the city co-operating. The speakers will be Secretary of the Navy Curtis D. Wilbur and Senator Don Alejandro Padilla y Bell, ambassador of Spain to the United States.

JUNIOR TOPIC—How God's Kingdom Grows.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How the Kingdom Grows.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Growing Kingdom of God.

I. Jesus Preaching the Gospel of the Kingdom of God (Mark 1:14, 15).

1. The time.

After the voice of John the Baptist was still because of his imprisonment, Jesus took up the message

2. What He preached.

It was the gospel of the kingdom of God. Since "gospel" means "good news," the good news which He preached was that Christ had come to establish His kingdom.

3. How He preached.

He said, "Repent, for the kingdom is at hand." The King was then ready to set up His kingdom if the Jews would receive Him.

II. Jesus Pictures Four Classes of Hearers (Mark 4:1-20).

1. The place—the seashore (v. 1).

He was obliged to enter a boat to escape the pressure of the crowd.

2. Why He taught in parables (vv. 9-12).

It was not until the rulers had set their hearts against Him that He employed the parabolic method.

3. The parable of the four kinds of ground (vv. 3-8; 13-20).

Observe that the seed and the sower are the same in all these instances, but the results are entirely different, determined by the condition of the soil.

(1) The Wayside (vv. 14, 15).

The wayside means the track beaten by the hoofs of animals and the feet of men. Because the soil was unbroken and uncultivated the seed could not get beneath the surface, therefore was devoured by fowls, which represent the agents of Satan (v. 15).

(2) The stony ground (vv. 5, 6, 16, 17).

Stony ground means stones with a thin layer of soil upon them. Under such conditions the seed springs up quickly and is soon scorched because it has not much depth.

(3) The thorny ground (vv. 7, 18, 19).

In this case the ground is good, but has thorns in it. It is mellow and has depth, but has not been cleaned of the thorns. The thorny ground hearers of this age are: (a) Those who are so immersed in worldliness, business and anxious care that the good seed cannot mature; (b) those who are rich. The effect of riches is often to blind the spiritual perceptions; (c) those who are running after the pleasures of life. All these things choke the Word.

4. The good ground (vv. 8, 20).

This ground differs from all the rest. It is soft and mellow, deep and moist, therefore is capable of bringing forth fruit in varying degrees of abundance.

III. Jesus Pictures the Growth of the Kingdom (Mark 4:21-34).

1. The parable of the candle (vv. 21-25).

The bushel stands for the cares and material things of life, and the bed for ease and comfort.

2. The parable of the growing grain (vv. 26-29).

(1) The attitude of mind of the gospel preacher (vv. 26, 27).

He should with the utmost fidelity cast seed into the ground, preach the Word, and leave results to God.

(2) The processes of the spiritual life are gradual (v. 28). It is "first the blade, then the ear, after that the full corn in the ear."

(3) The consummation of the spiritual process (v. 29).

Despite the difficulty under which sowing is done, we can be assured of a harvest time.

3.—The parable of the mustard seed (vv. 30-34).

(1) The unimportant beginning (v. 31).

(2) Its vigorous growth (v. 32).

The greatest power on earth today is that which has its inception in the preaching of the gospel.

(3) Its lodging capacity (v. 32).

The birds which lodge in the branches represent the children of the evil one who find protection and food in that which was inaugurated by Jesus Christ.

A silkworm's cocoon contains from 500 to 1,200 yards of silk.

Doubtful Recommendation.

A London newspaper contains an advertisement of an old English house to be sold, which begins in the familiar style—"Twelve bedrooms, four sitting rooms, paneled dining room, large nooks, dower chests," etc., and suddenly breaks off from the catalog of ancient blessings with this modernism: "But, owing to electric light, no ghost." One hardly knows whether this exception will add to or detract from the "pulling" power of the announcement.

BREMEN TWP.HEALTH NOTES

The past week has been one of unusual activity in the health work of our township. Thursday we completed our first group of children taking the Toxine-Antitoxine, and on the same day we had two girls from Midlothian at the Dental Convention being held in the Drake Hotel, these children had a large amount of very good dental work done during the past year and this work was examined by a great many Dentists from other cities and states and all paid the highest complements to our county Dentists that are doing such good work in the rural districts.

Both Dentists and Nurses from other towns were asking how this service to the school children had been brought about, with a view to starting some thing similar in their own counties. Next week we will go back to school inspection, also we will give out "permit slips" to the schools that have not yet had them, so if there are others who wish to take the Toxine-Antitoxine this can be arranged for.

ELEANOR GALLAGHER, R. N.

SERMONETTE

We have been deeply interested in the increasing interest in our church services during the past few weeks.

There has been a noticeable increase in the number attending the various services. Especially have we been impressed with the unusual interest on the part of the men. We often hear it said, that women are more religiously inclined than men. I wonder if that is true, or if, on the other hand it is not due to the fact that men, often excuse themselves on the basis that they are too busy to spend much time going to church. However that may be, we do not find that this criticism is true in Tinley Park. We have noticed a decidedly larger number of men in our services during the past few weeks than women.

We highly appreciate the fact that the men are vitally interested in the program of the church and we look forward to a successful year together in the work of the Kingdom of Christ.

If you are not attending church anywhere, we cordially invite you to come out and worship with us. You will always find a church with a big heart and a warm welcome.

THE BANKER-FARMER MOVEMENT GROWING

There are several reasons for the growth of the banker-farmer movement in Pennsylvania. William S. McKay, Chairman of the Agricultural Committee, Pennsylvania Bankers Association, has reported to the Agricultural Commission of the American Bankers Association. The cooperation and leadership of the county agents in the several counties of the state; the appointment and functioning of county chairmen of agriculture known as Key Bankers, one of whom there is in each county of the state; and the organization of county bankers associations, whereby agriculture is given consideration by all the banks, are responsible for this interest. The following table shows the activities for the year:

Project	Number of Counties
Sent young farmers to state college for special course	5
Encouraged farm shows	16
Held agricultural tours	6
Sponsored various club activities	33
Gave illustrated lectures on poultry, cow testing, and improved farm methods	1
Distributed purebred livestock, chicks, and disease-free potatoes	13

"There is probably no class of business men that has a greater opportunity for helpfulness than the bankers in this movement," declares Mr. McKay. "It builds up a substantial community which makes for better

SECRETARY JARDINE URGES MUSCLE SHOALS FERTILIZER AS AID TO FARMERS

Have Been Making Promises Too Long, He Says

"One of the chief ways in which we can help the farmers of this country is to help reduce the cost of their fertilizer bills," Secretary of Agriculture, William Jardine, told a Muscle Shoals inquiry committee of congress last spring in a statement that has just been made public. "They have to use more of it rather than less of it, and concentrated fertilizer—if I understand it correctly—means a reduction of 25 or 30 per cent in the present cost, simply through savings on freight rates and mixing."

Secretary Jardine, in addressing this committee charged with the disposition of Muscle Shoals, explained that he was not interested in Muscle Shoals from the power standpoint nor for any other kind of development except that of "making it work as effectively as possible in the interest of the farmers by giving them cheap fertilizers."

"My chief concern is that we do it without delay. We have been making promises for a long time. For 10 years now the promise of a cheaper fertilizer has been before this country. If we had had this going in the last five years, it would have helped the farmers materially."

During this same hearing Congressman John J. McSwain, of South Carolina, made it clear that there is no guarantee of any very cheap fertilizer through the various new processes urged by Dr. F. G. Cottrell and his associates of the Fixed Nitrogen Research Laboratory.

"I do not care how cheaply the du Pont people may be able to manufacture nitrogenous plant food, they are not going to set up this cost-plus-a-reasonable-profit plan (as involved in the offer of the American Cyanamid Company). They will make all the margin between the cost and the existing price of Chilean nitrates, and they will make just as much profit as possible. Now, what I am anxious to do at Muscle Shoals is to use in time of peace that mighty project in order to keep it ready for war. It can be used as a hammer to drive fertilizer prices down through competition."

Strictly speaking, the thumb should not be referred to as a finger and we have on each hand four fingers and a thumb. The term that refers to all five of the divisions of the hand is digit. However, the word "finger" has come to be used loosely in reference to the four digits and the thumb.

Why They Chuckled

Smith had been troubled by his neighbor's hens. One day he was looking at them over the fence when he inquired, "By the way, Jones, what did you pay for those fowls?" "A dollar apiece," replied Brown. "Ah, that explains it," said Smith. "I wondered what the things had to chuckle about."

Term of Opprobrium

The term Yankee, according to Bomaugh, is not Indian, but Dutch, and means to snarl and quarrel. It was applied by the burghers of New Amsterdam to the invaders from Connecticut.

Paine's Claim to Fame

Thomas Paine was born in 1737 and died in 1809. Of his work called "Common Sense" it is said that it was "the first open assertion of American independence, and was probably the most powerful pamphlet that ever influenced a nation's history." In this sense Thomas Paine may be said to have influenced the preparation and adoption of the Declaration of Independence.

BANKERS HELP OUT

The Oklahoma Bankers Association for the past twelve years has financed through its five groups ten scholarships in the A. & M. College at Stillwater. The winners are chosen by the Extension Department of the college on the merits of the club work done by the boys and girls over a certain period of time. The groups of the association finance the first year of the winner's college work.

The president of a national bank in Fayetteville, Arkansas, has been credited with doing more for the farmers of his section than any other man. His work has consisted of introducing pure bred Holstein cattle into his county, helping employ a county agent, donating prizes to boys and girls in club work, and distributing better seed.

Here are some of the things accomplished in Randolph County, Ark., with the help of bankers last year: forty-three purebred gilts were bought at a reasonable price and placed with boys and girls, on notes; three thousand eggs from high producing hens were distributed with the idea of developing flocks of at least one hundred hens on every farm; four purebred Jersey bulls whose dams had a record of over 700 pounds butterfat, have been purchased by the banks and will be paid for out of service fees.

Our Primary Class No. 2 and 3, with Mrs. Semmler as teacher, announces an entertainment given exclusively by the members of the group on Friday evening, February 17th. Refreshments are to be served. The program is of a patriotic nature and has memories of both Lincoln and Washington incorporated. Invite your friends.

What Christian man or woman feels the need of the church, community and children, enough to make the sacrifice of personal pleasure, time, energy and such definite personal consecration to the work of Christ as will be necessary to teach a fine Sunday School class of eight boys around the age of twelve years? We have such a class without a teacher. The pastor would appreciate knowing someone who would take advantage of this great opportunity for service to God. It is a hard job, but one that will net much return in Christian character and the future of the community. Unless we have some such person, these fine boys may be lost to the church of Christ.

MR. SPECKLES' GREAT IDEA

Santa Claus sat on a bench next the sunny side of his North Pole bungalow. The old gentleman wore a worried and harassed look quite foreign to his usual jovial expression. Sam Speckles, a foreman in one of Santa's toy shops, passed by and noticed the good old saint. "What's the matter, Santa?" he asked. "This job's getting too big for one man," answered Santa. "The world's getting better and better all the time and that means I have that much more work to do, and it's getting to be a mighty hard task to make things enough to go around let alone distributing them!"

Mr. Speckles scratched his head. "Well," he said, "here's an idea, and I think it's a mighty good one. Remember that the magazine full of stories and pictures and nice things you had the other day?" Oh, you mean The Youth's Companion," said Santa. "Yes, that's it," answered Sam. "Well, it seems to me that if you'd tell a lot of parents about that magazine and how fine and enjoyable it was for boys and girls they'd give subscriptions to The Youth's Companion as a Christmas gift to lots of young folk, and that would help you a lot."

"That's a mighty good idea," said Santa, "and, as a matter of fact, many parents do just that already, but—" Santa sighed, "I wish that more of them realized what a fine gift The Youth's Companion makes, and would give it, too."

IDLE ISLAND

STORY FROM THE START

On the verge of nervous collapse, due to overwork, Gay Deane, artist, seeks rest at Idle Island. She rents a cottage, the "Lone Pine," from an island character, the "Captain," and his sister, Alice Andover, "administrators." Gay finds the cottage is tenanted by an elderly lady, "Auntalmiry," who consents to move to another abode, the "Apple Tree." On an exploration of the island Gay is horrified by the appearance of the drifting body of a drowned man. A bullet wound in the temple shows the man to have been murdered. Gay returns with the "Captain," but they find no body there. Gay, being unable to convince her neighbors of the truth, draws a picture of the face of the dead man, intending to send it to the authorities. She meets a stranger to whom she tells the story and shows the picture. He asks for it, but Gay refuses. Next day the picture is missing. "Rand" Wallace, wanderer, and considered something of a "black sheep" by the islanders, surprises Gay at household tasks. Gay's acquaintance with Rand ripens into affection. Gay determines to stay for the winter. The stranger whom Gay had met the day of her discovery of the body introduces himself as Ronald Ingram. "Auntalmiry" tells Gay of her son, "Buddy," who has been missing for years. Rand is suspicious of Ronald Ingram, and apprehensive of some evil-doing in a house known as the "Little Club," apparently unoccupied. "Auntalmiry" is planning her Christmas party.

"I'm sorry he chose the Lone Pine for his hibernating this afternoon. He cheated me out of a pleasant hour. Does he think best in the top of your pine tree? I saw him perching there as if he were quite at home."

Gay laughed merrily. "No, indeed. He was putting up an aerial. He is building me a radio. No, he does not hibernate in my tree top, and I wish you had come in. You would quite like him."

"No, I shouldn't like him.—Not him, under any circumstances.—And I do not enjoy other people's cooking; it riles me."

"We don't cook. Fancy the state of Maine cooking."

Ronald Ingram reverted again moodily to talk of the land. He was not yet sure what he really wanted to do with it, he said, wondered if he would not be wise to sell it outright.

"I haven't money enough to finance things on a big scale. Of course if the boom ever comes—and it ought to boom—it seems the logical summer refrigerator for New York and Boston, yes, even for Washington. I have two companies figuring on it. What would you think of a Chinese group, imitation bamboo stuff, pagodas and all that? I know a Chinese artist from Boston. My son, his name is. He's been up a few times, making sketches for me. Clever chap he is, for a Chin. He was here yesterday. He thinks we can swing it big."

Mercurially, Gay was fully in sympathy with him again. By his candor he had entirely stilled the suspicions that Rand had stirred to life. How frankly he spoke of the Chinese artist. How natural his explanation of the little foreigner's presence. In the face of his disarming, ingenuous outspokenness, his honest admission of his financial limitations, how very petty and narrow and mean appeared the cold suspicious nature of New England.

He said he was obliged to return to Portland on the early boat, and Gay went with him to the door.

"You are very game, I know, but do please, be careful. Keep yourself locked in and everybody else locked out, won't you?"

The genuineness of his solicitude touched Gay. "I will be careful," she said. "I wish you were staying all winter. You are such a pleasant interlude."

"Interlude between Cavaliers," he said regretfully. "Still it is something to see you, to touch your hand. I am grateful for that. You are very—sweet. You will not forget me, will you?"

Half an hour later Rand came, and without waiting for a word from him Gay launched at once into a long and fervid defense of Ronald Ingram.

"You may be right about some things, but on Ronald Ingram you are totally wrong. He's really a nice fellow, and you will like him. Perhaps he'll let you be Chief High Priest of his Chinese pagoda."

Rand laughed at her.

The next day he went to the city to look up the records of real-estate transfers. He found that the entire property of the Little club had been bought outright, for cash, by Ronald Ingram of New York city, and that all publication of the transfer had been withheld from the press at his request, presumably for business reasons. But the date of this purchase was not within the past month, as he had explicitly stated to Gay, but nearly two years earlier, since which time the place had not been offered either for sale or rental, and all taxes had been promptly paid.

CHAPTER VIII

Rand kept a jealous watch over the Little club, and over the bit of forest land that served so effectively to conceal it from curious eyes. Every day with his gun he tramped the woods and shore, coming often upon the old house, as if by inadvertence, sometimes trying the doors tentatively, as did all casual strollers who passed that way. But in spite of his seeming nonchalance and the lazy aimlessness of his wanderings, he was always sharply alert for signs of life.

With powerful field-glasses he examined the cove from a distance, and watched every day for a cloud of smoke to tinge the blue above the woods. But all of his efforts were unavailing.

After the first few tingling nerve-racked days, Gay's excitement flagged, her interest waned and all of her suspicions rested.

"Oh, it's just a bunch of rum runners, if it's anybody at all," she assured him, half jealous of his immersion in the mystery. "Pay attention to me. It's none of our business.—Besides, maybe he's right, after all—Ronald Ingram. Perhaps the Chin is just an artist from Boston."

"He Was Putting Up an Aerial."

But Rand would not be drawn from the pursuit. The mass of evidence was too convincing. And now that his suspicions were fully aroused, he marveled that he had never before realized how completely the Little club was adapted for secret criminal exploitation—as was the island itself for that matter, securely bedded in sanctity as it seemed.

The occupation of the summer colony continued but for a scant three months of the year, and with its going the entire northern peninsula was deserted. Except for the Lone Pine on the hilltop and the Apple Tree in the orchard below, there was no residence within a mile of the cove, which was admirably protected, shut in snugly by high cliffs to east and west, while directly before it lay the little rock-girt dome of Punkin knob. While the cove offered a perfect landing for small boats, it lay to the west of the course taken by ships going in and out of Portland harbor.

Examining those locked doors and windows afresh, with his suspicions aroused, Rand saw clearly that it was now far more securely shut in than it had been in former years of its desertion. Every crack and seam of the frames that covered windows and doors had been sealed from within. It was locked from chimney to solid rock foundation, as tight as a drum.

Often, in wandering about, both in the woods and near the club, Rand had a feeling that he was watched, but all his efforts to discover the secret source of this were unavailing. Gay admitted that she, too, felt watched sometimes. She said it was the troubled spirit of the body that had come to her in the cove.

And then, after three weeks of keeping a watch so strict that he would have sworn that nothing untoward could possibly have occurred in the island without his knowledge, it was not, after all, the result of his assiduous guard that brought result, but the idle curiosity of the Females Wallace, the thing that Rand particularly disliked and took pleasure in deery.

"Rand," began Miss Lida timidly, as they sat at supper, "you don't know who is moving off the island, do you?"

"No," he said briefly. "Is anybody?"

"Well, a big furniture van came by this afternoon. It went up toward the point. I walked up to the end of the lane, but it was out of sight, and I don't know if it went down the back shore or up to Colony corner. But it didn't come down."

Then for the first time Rand turned around with some interest. "It didn't come down," he repeated. "It must have come down. There's nobody on the Back Shore, nor up at the Colony either. It must have gone back to town on the last ferry."

"No, it didn't. Mary Malcolm was watching for it, to ask the driver."

"If I hear anything about it, I'll let you know," Rand said, with unusual kindness.

Quickly he excused himself from the table and went out. At the end of the lane he paused to consider. The Back Shore was a long open road, subject to traffic. If a strange motor van went that way, it had left late business there. But the Colony corner, although nearly half a mile from the Little club, which stood at the other end of the forest, was separated from it only by thick and impenetrable forest. It was not the nearest point from the club to the motor road, but it was by all odds the most desirable for one who desired secrecy.

Anyone, then, who wished to remove something from the Little club without attracting undue attention, would most certainly run a car to the end of the road at Colony corner, for the road ended there, and carry a secret burden through the dark and deserted woods to that point.

With this in mind, Rand turned up to the Colony corner on a dead run. Like every other islander, he carried in his pocket a small electric flash. But like no other islander, he carried also a revolver on his hip.

As he neared the end of the road, where it fell abruptly away to a steep decline of rocks, he skirted wider into the woods behind the Shingle shack, and drew up slowly to the fringe of the woods. It was very dark, but distinctly he could make out a huge bulky shadow against the trees that outlined the end of the road. It was the motor van, beyond all shadow of doubt. There was no light attached, no sound from within, no stir of life. Rand held his breath to listen, but it was silent as a tomb. Suspecting the presence of a guard, he dared not venture on examination, but as he knew the van could not possibly get off the island until the ferry at six twenty-five in the morning, he felt he had plenty of time.

Gingerly, then, he worked his way to the rear of the cottage, with which he was familiar, and let himself into a basement window and up through the cellar stairs to the front room. There with blankets from an adjoining bedroom, and pillows from the couch, he made himself comfortable on the floor beside the window—too comfortable, for he fell sound asleep.

Hours later he was awakened by the sudden sound of a motor, and cursing his negligence he sprang up. It was not yet full daylight, but the pale gray mist that creeps between day and night, holding a hand of each, lay over the island.

In the driver's seat of the van a man huddled in a great coat, his cap drawn low, his hands encased in slaggy gloves. The motor was cold, and he was obliged to press the starter again and again.

Dragon-Fly a Marvel of the Insect World

The dragon fly is not one of those beings who have eyes and see not. When this insect looks at you he sees you well—71,000 of you.

This most wonderful organ of vision, though no larger than a pin's head, has facets upon the lens of the eye and these facets have been counted as high as 17,000, each one more perfect than any side of a diamond fashioned by the hand of man.

The dragon-fly usually is found near water, probably the stream whence it first emerged, says London Tit-Bits. Its wings, which are of the most exquisite and transparent gauze, move

Slap at Education

Education is really a very simple matter. A wise man once said that it consists of a log, with a teacher sitting on one end and a student on the other. Or it is a bowl of soup and a ladle and a hungry child asking for more. The rest is largely flapping, or the whistling of educators to keep up their courage.—Don Rose in the Philadelphia Ledger.

Little Soil Not Tilled

In Guatemala and Salvador, the two most populous countries in Central America, the population is so dense that there is very little waste land. Guatemala has 2,000,000 people and Salvador with an area of only 7,225 square miles, 1,040,000 or 144 persons to the square mile. This is the densest population in the western hemisphere. These countries are rich in sugar, coffee, minerals, rice, hemp, cotton and bananas.

A Thought for Today

If a man be endowed with a generous mind, this is the best kind of nobility.—Plato.

When the engine ran smoothly at last, the driver backed it around, carefully, for the road was narrow and the rocky cliff rugged and precipitous, with trees jutting close. As it turned Rand saw the license plates, Maine, Massachusetts, New Jersey, New York, in conformity with the law which requires interstate vehicles to bear the license of each, and Rand had time to jot down the New Hampshire number before the car was finally backed away from him.

Rand looked at his watch. It was a quarter past six. The first ferry went over at six twenty-five.

"Well planned for a getaway," he thought, approvingly. "No time for Mary Malcolm to ask them any questions."

The guard stepped briskly down from the rocks and threw open the big doors in the rear of the van. A sudden jerk of his head toward the wood was evidently a signal, for on the instant appeared a line of men, small, stooped and shuffling, who came in a sort of loping run down the narrow path from the woods, single file, their soft feet making no sound at all, either on the rocks or among the dry dead needles of the pines. The guard at the back of the car gave each a hand in turn, and swung them up, deftly, into the van, one after another.

And as they turned about, facing him, to make the lithe spring into the car, Rand saw their faces. They were Chinese, every one, twenty-five of them by count. The guard hastily closed the door, snapping a lock upon it, and sprang up beside the driver, and almost before he was in his seat the car was rolling swiftly away down the cinder road.

For one moment Rand was irritable. He could telephone to the police on the mainland, and a detail of them would meet the ferry at the pier and take the truck with its foreign freight into custody. But on afterthought, it seemed that the capture of these twenty-five little Chinese men meant nothing. It was the ring that counted, the band that had grouped itself together to mock at the law. Making his decision quickly, he hurriedly got out of the cottage and ran through the woods toward the Little club.

Hastily selecting the trail in the rocks where the descent was least difficult, a trail held in his memory from boyhood adventures years before, Rand dropped swiftly down, from crag to crag, until he stood in the cove. The one great door beneath the piazza was securely locked, every seam and crack impenetrably sealed.

Reluctantly he abandoned hope of admission from below and made his way up the cliffs once more. Rand knew the construction of the building perfectly, having assisted indeed in its erection. In the beginning there had been no bank of loose rocks beneath the piazza other than that afforded by nature, and there was a window to the basement on the eastern side, opening just above ground. Later on, for the sake of warmth, small rocks had been thrown under, and although Rand felt some distaste for the task, he felt sure that by pulling out the rocks, he could get at the window beneath the piazza floor, and thus into the basement. It was unlikely that the small basement window would be subjected to such rigid sealing, sheltered as it was behind six feet of piazza floor well walled with rocks.

In spite of his profession of indolence, Rand was not averse to labor when the end justified the effort, so he fell sturdily to work at a distance which he judged, and correctly as events proved, would lead to the basement window.

It was a long time before his efforts were rewarded by a cleared window, the usual small basement window, perhaps two feet long by eighteen inches high. The glass was covered on the inside with a thick black curtain, so that he gained no view of the interior, and the window itself he found, to his disappointment, not only locked, but sealed with a fine cement, or wax, along the four edges of it.

Convinced, however, that something of great value must be concealed there to necessitate these precautions, he resolved to gain admittance at all costs. With renewed eagerness he attacked the window with the stout knife which had served him well a hundred times in the emergencies of boating, fishing and hunting, and worked it slowly around the edges, pecking at the cement which bound it in place. And finally he felt it give, sway slightly beneath his hand, and drew it carefully out.

Cautiously he thrust his hand into the aperture, and drew aside the black curtain which veiled it. The room was in absolute darkness. He listened long, but could hear no slightest sound in any portion of the house. Breathlessly, then, his revolver cocked alertly in his right hand, with the left he extended his pocket flash, pressed the button, and swept the yellow light into the room moving it slowly about, inch by inch, from wall to wall. The silence was like the grave itself.

Rand felt the emptiness of the house, sensed it, and unwilling to lose an opportunity he might not have again, he determined to go in, although realizing fully the risk he ran.

To get in he was obliged to replace both his flash and his revolver in his pocket, and drop down, defenseless and in the dark, but this was a chance he felt he was obliged to take. And after that breathless moment of his descent, when he flashed his light into the room again, it seemed surprisingly commonplace, just what one would expect to find the basement of an old abandoned clubhouse.

To awaken in the morning with a smile brightening my face; to greet the day with reverence for the opportunities it contains; to approach my work with a clear mind, to hold over before me, even in the doing of little things, the ultimate purpose toward which I am working; to meet men and women with laughter on my lips and love in my heart, to be gentle and kind and courteous through all the hours; to approach the night with weariness that ever from work well done—this is how I desire to waste wisely my days.—Thomas Dreier.

HERE ARE SOME CAKES

A good cake is always an addition to any food supply. The kind that keeps is popular, providing it is good.

Quisit Cake.—Cream one-half cupful of butter with one and one-half cupfuls of sugar, beat very light, then add the yolks of three eggs beaten well; add one-half cupful of milk alternately with one and one-half cupfuls of flour sifted with one teaspoonful of baking powder. Fold in the beaten egg whites and add six tablespoonfuls of chocolate dissolved in two tablespoonfuls of boiling milk, added the last thing. Bake in a moderate oven and cover with:

Butter Frosting.—Take two cupfuls of sugar, two tablespoonfuls of butter, three-fourths of a cupful of milk. Boil ten minutes, add a teaspoonful of vanilla and beat until it thickens, then pour over the cake.

Pork Cake.—Put one pound of fat salt pork through the meat chopper and pour on two cupfuls of boiling water and let stand for twenty minutes. In a mixing bowl put one cupful of molasses, two cupfuls of brown sugar, one-third of a cupful of boiling water in which two teaspoonfuls of soda is dissolved. Add the pork and water, one-half pound of currants, one pound of raisins, one teaspoonful of nutmeg, the same of cinnamon, cloves, salt and allspice. Add enough flour—about four cupfuls—to make a stiff mixture. Add a teaspoonful of baking powder. Mix and bake one hour in a slow oven. This recipe makes four loaves, which will keep and taste like fruit cake. Dried apples which have been soaked and chopped may be added, using fewer raisins.

Chocolate Ice Box Cake.—Melt one pound of sweet chocolate over hot water. Add three tablespoonfuls of sugar, a bit of salt and six unbeaten egg yolks, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Remove from the heat and add one teaspoonful of vanilla. Beat the egg whites stiff and fold into the chocolate mixture. Line a deep pie plate or fancy mold with waxed paper, then arrange halves of lady fingers put close together. Pour in half of the chocolate filling. Cover with a layer of the lady fingers, then let them set to become firm, adding the remainder of the chocolate. Place in a cold place or on ice for several hours. Serve garnished with whipped cream and candied cherries chopped, also pistachio nuts chopped.

Nice Things to Eat.

Who doesn't enjoy the flavor of a choice cut of ham? Where ham is available to be cut from, try the following:

Barbecued Ham.—Cut the ham into very thin slices and broil quickly. Arrange on a platter and add to the fat in the pan a teaspoonful of sugar, one teaspoonful of made mustard, a dash of red pepper and four tablespoonfuls of vinegar. Stir until bubbling hot, then pour over the ham and serve.

Armenian Goulash.—For this dish use two lamb or mutton hearts. Sift the hearts and wash them, then remove the arteries. Cut into inch cubes and parboil, then drain. Mince eight onions very fine with three green peppers. Place the vegetables in a saucepan with the hearts, one teaspoonful each of thyme and sage and one quart of boiling water. Cook until the meat is tender, then add one dozen dumplings prepared as follows: One cupful of mashed potatoes, one teaspoonful of salt, three-fourths cupful of flour, one teaspoonful of chopped parsley and one teaspoonful of baking powder. Mix and form into twelve dumplings and drop into the goulash. Cover tightly and cook gently for fifteen minutes. Lift the dumplings to a hot plate. Season with salt and thicken the gravy.

Fried Oysters.—Select large oysters, wash thoroughly, picking each one over to remove all pieces of shell. Season with salt and pepper, dip into cracker crumbs, then into egg and again into cracker crumbs. Fry in deep fat until brown. Serve with sliced lemon and chili sauce.

Custard Potatoes.—Take a pint of cubed potatoes. Heat one pint of milk, add salt, pepper and two beaten eggs. Cook over water until thickened, add chopped parsley and pour the custard over the potatoes in a baking dish. Place the dish in water and let stand until the custard covers each piece of potato like a rich sauce.

TWO HOMES MADE HAPPY

By Women Who Used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I think it is the most wonderful medicine I ever tried," is the statement made by Mrs. Goldie Shoup of St. Joseph, Illinois. She declares that after taking the Compound she is in better health than before.

Mrs. J. Storms of 29 Lane Street, Paterson, N. J., writes: "I can not speak too highly of your medicine and I recommend it to all my friends."

These statements were taken from two enthusiastic letters which tell of the help that has been received from using the Vegetable Compound. Both Mrs. Shoup and Mrs. Storms were in a run-down condition which caused them much unhappiness. When women are suffering from lack of strength and from weakness, their own life and that of their family is affected. When they feel well and strong and are able to do their housework easily, happy homes are the result.

Thousands of testimonial letters have been received from women in different walks of life, stating that the Compound has helped them.

More Cars Than Phones
Statistics compiled by the Chrysler statistical division show that there are more motor cars than telephones in use today. The automobile industry now surpasses the steel business, the clothing and the telephone industry in size. It has become the world's most important commercial activity except providing food, clothing and shelter for humanity.

Heck of a Time

Mother—Did you children have a good time while I was out shopping?
Little Nell—Yes, mother.
Mother—What did you do, dear?
Little Nell—Oh, we quarreled all the time and there wasn't anybody here to stop us.

The BABY

Why do so many, many babies of today escape all the little fretful spells and infantile ailments that used to worry mothers through the day, and keep them up half the night?

If you don't know the answer, you haven't discovered pure, harmless Castoria. It is sweet to the taste, and sweet in the little stomach. And its gentle influence seems felt all through the tiny system. Not even a distasteful dose of castor oil does so much good.

Fletcher's Castoria is purely vegetable, so you may give it freely, at first sign of colic; or constipation; or diarrhea. Or those many times when you just don't know what is the matter. For real sickness, call the doctor, always. At other times, a few drops of Fletcher's Castoria.

The doctor often tells you to do just that; and always says Fletcher's. Other preparations may be just as pure, just as free from dangerous drugs, but why experiment? Besides, the book on care and feeding of babies that comes with Fletcher's Castoria is worth its weight in gold!

BREMEN TWP. HEALTH NEWS
We are sorry to record another death from diphtheria in one of our towns, but this death has not been in vain, as it has stirred the entire community to action, and we are going to give the Toxin-Antitoxine to all children in both schools in Posen whose parents have signed the permit slip and the village authorities have agreed to stand the expense of administering it. We feel that in doing this the village board of Posen are setting an example for other villages in protecting the younger members of the community against the dread disease of childhood. Mrs. F. Bless who is our local member of the Bremen Township Health Council will aid in carrying out this splendid program of preventive medicine.
